FAR LEFT: A member of Tonny Petersen's Hell Drivers drives a 1937 Dodge named 'Lucy' through a burning barricade Aug. 29 at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds. The Hell Drivers performed their synchronized driving stunt show at 14 fairs across the country during the summer.

NEAR LEFT: Three-year-old Patrick Greene Jr., right, gets his hair cut Oct. 15 by his father, Patrick Greene, of Carbondale, at Illusions Barber Shop on West Walnut Street. Patrick, manager of the shop, said Illusions has been around for about 10 years and sees family members for cuts as well as many regular customers from as far as Mt. Vernon.

NEAR RIGHT: Aviation students and faculty greet 120 high school and community college students, mostly from the Chicago area, Oct. 19 at the Southern Illinois Airport. Piloted by 1983 alumnus Jay Rud, the students arrived on a McDonnell Douglas MD-80 donated by American Airlines and manned by a volunteer crew. According to David NewMyer, professor and chair of aviation management and flight, the career day is the most successful recruiting event, bringing in approximately 50 to 60 students for the aircraft maintenance and airline management programs.

FAR RIGHT: Gabriel Livermore, 5, of Marion, plays with clay Sept. 13 outside the Student Center. SIU students made pots to promote the Raku pottery class offered at the craft shop.

Jamie Long, a senior from Ellis Grove studying plant and soil science, left, assists Joe Wuerffel, a graduate student in plant biology from Dupu, water hemp plants Oct. 28 within the designated areas in the Forestry Center's greenhouse. Wuerffel said they routinely move plants within their designated areas to receive adequate light to ensure even growth. Wuerffel said this greenhouse is one of several that SIU provides for its students.

Ashton Reedy, 9, of Carterville, second from left, flies an augmented reality drone while judge Reid Burke, of Carbondale, instructs him Nov. 2 during HackSI at the Dunn-Richmond Economic Development Center. Developers of all ages spent the day creating games, applications and building robots for the event; which lasts for 12 hours and is meant to get people in the area excited about creating projects with technology. "Seeing a lot of people coming out who wouldn't normally have time to build is a good thing for the first event, and you have drones flying around and that's pretty cool," Burke said.

Amanda Henley of Brookport leads her son Lucas, 6, away from what remains of her great-grandparents' home Nov. 23 during community-wide cleanup efforts. Henley's home, in the same neighborhood, was also damaged in the storm. "My little boy is six years old. How do you explain all of this? What do you say? He's doing really good now, but he won't leave our side." Henley said the family plans to rebuild. "That's our home, we're not leaving it," she said.

Jill Zyer, a freshman from Frankfort studying special education, writes on the "Before I Die" wall Oct. 1 outside of Faner Hall. Bethany Wendler, the coordinator for Student Involvement and Leadership Development, describes the wall as a community art project designed to get people involved. "This is a unique way to experience campus because it adds something different to Faner Hall and makes you look at things differently," Wendler said.

Comedian Terry "Tmurph" Jackson of Carbondale poses in front of Arnette's Barber Shop. Jackson works as a barber at the shop when he's not on stage. Jackson regularly performs at Hangar 9 in Carbondale and has appeared on the show Comic View on BET. Tmurph appeared on the season-two finale of Key and Peele on Comedy Central, where he played the role of a barber. "I enjoy having people come up to me after the show and telling me they enjoyed the stories about my life," Jackson said.

Karen Jensen, general manager at Indian Creek Kennel, plays with rescue dogs Dec. 2 in the dogs' play area. Indian Creek owner Roya Newman says the business has been around for 30 years and the employee's duties are more than just a job but a passion they all share. With stray animals becoming a problem, "kenneling is a way to get dogs homes and stop them from being euthanized," Newman said.

Don Snider mounts a reindeer on the Santa Clause float Dec. 2 at his home in Carbondale. Snider says that the float has been a big part of the canceled Lights Fantastic parade for 12 years and the funding comes from donations. "We wanted something traditional," Snider said. "The kids really look forward to it as well." This particular float and many others will be on display from 6 to 8 p.m. in the parking lot north of the Communications Building at SIU Saturday as this year's parade was cancelled because of weather.

Josh Murphy and Chris Goode, of Wild Murphy and the New Year, and Kasey Rogers, right, a solo musician of Carmi, perform Nov. 7 at Tres Hombres in Carbondale. Wild Murphy and the New Year is a two-piece band from West Frankfort that plays spiritual and improvised folk songs.

Alexander Gardner, a senior from Sherrad studying mechanical engineering, throws a disc Sept. 10 at the campus lake disc golf course. Gardner is a member of the SIU disc golf club and had been playing for four weeks. "This is one of those sports where you're outside, and I like to be outside," Gardner said. He became involved in the sport after buying four discs from his friend Jake Kreeb, who is also a member of the RSO. "It's just a relaxing walk in the park with an occasional disc throw," Kreeb said.

ABOVE: Senior guard Desmar Jackson prepares for a dunk Nov. 4 during the Salukis' 71-66 exhibition win over the University of Missouri—St. Louis at SIU Arena. Jackson led SIU with 29 points and shot 13-of-16 from the free-throw line.

RIGHT: Undergraduate student assistant coach Josh Swan lifts Zoe Taylor, 4, of Herrin to the basket Oct. 24 during Fan Fest at SIU Arena. "She's a big Barry Hinson fan," Taylor's mother Michelle said. Coach Hinson said the event is about the fans, and he is pleased with this year's team. "They do a good job with the little ones," he said. "I'm proud of them."

The SIU women's Ultimate Frisbee team gets ready for their first game by doing a cheer Nov. 2 during the 23rd annual Harvest Moon tournament in Fayetteville, Ark. The tournament featured nearly 60 teams, each dressing up with a different theme. "Harvest moon is one of my favorite tournaments," team captain Jessica Stapleton said. "It's about having fun and playing a game that we love."

Senior catcher Allie VadeBoncouer tags out Southeast Missouri State University's pitcher Whitney Dupuis at home plate Sept. 22 during the game at Charlotte West Stadium. VadeBoncouer's effort to protect the plate was not enough to hold the Redhawks for a win and the Salukis fell 7-4 for their only loss over the three-game series. SIU defeated Saint Louis University 4-3 and John A. Logan College 10-2 before tallying a loss against SEMO.
